FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

National Kidney Foundation of Florida Announces New Board Leadership

Paul Sapia Named President; Shannon L. Moore Named Vice President

Orlando, Fla. — August 29th — The National Kidney Foundation of Florida (NKFF) is pleased to announce the appointment of Paul Sapia as President and Shannon L. Moore as Vice President of its Board of Trustees. Both leaders bring extensive healthcare experience, a strong commitment to improving patient outcomes, and a shared dedication to advancing kidney health throughout Florida.

Paul Sapia, President

Sapia serves as Chief Population Health Officer at Telescope Health, where he leads the development and implementation of strategies designed to improve access to care, advance health equity, and address social determinants of health affecting diverse populations. He works closely with healthcare organizations, municipalities, employers, payers, hospitals, and community-based organizations to develop and scale value-based care programs that expand access to high-quality, patient-centered services.

Sapia brings more than 30 years of healthcare experience spanning direct patient care, insurance negotiations, credentialing, business development, and healthcare strategy. His career has focused on enhancing the patient experience, advancing healthcare education, strengthening community partnerships, and developing innovative solutions to improve access and health outcomes for underserved populations.

He is also passionate about developing future healthcare leaders and actively mentors students and emerging professionals through academic and workforce development initiatives. Sapia earned a Bachelor of Science in Exercise and Sports Sciences from the University of Florida and a Master of Health Administration from the University of North Florida.

Shannon L. Moore, Vice President

Moore is a healthcare executive with more than 20 years of experience in renal nutrition, dialysis operations, pharmaceutical commercial leadership, and healthcare advocacy. She currently serves as National Accounts Director at CorMedix Therapeutics, where she leads national outpatient strategy for DefenCath and works with healthcare organizations to expand access and improve patient outcomes.

A longtime advocate for kidney patients and the renal healthcare community, Moore currently serves as Legislative Chair of the Florida Renal Association, following her tenure as President. She has been actively involved in legislative advocacy and initiatives focused on improving access to kidney care for patients throughout Florida. She also serves on the Board of Directors of the National Kidney Foundation of Florida.

Moore is a graduate of Florida State University, where she earned a Master of Science in Clinical Nutrition. Her background combines clinical expertise, business leadership, strategic relationship building, and advocacy to advance the renal healthcare community.

Leadership Focused on the Future of Kidney Health

Together, Sapia and Moore bring complementary expertise in population health, healthcare strategy, renal care, advocacy, and community partnerships to NKFF's leadership. Their experience will support the Foundation's ongoing efforts to improve kidney health, expand access to care, support patients and families affected by kidney disease, and strengthen partnerships across Florida's healthcare and community systems.

> Savanna Lanza said, "We are excited to welcome Paul Sapia as President and Shannon Moore as Vice President of the National Kidney Foundation of Florida. Their extensive healthcare experience, commitment to improving access to care, and passion for serving patients make them tremendous leaders for NKFF. We look forward to working alongside them as we continue to expand our impact and advance kidney health throughout Florida."

Sapia succeeds Kevin Sacket whose leadership and service to the National Kidney Foundation of Florida will be recognized and appreciated as part of the organization's continued leadership transition.
